Growing Registered Seed

Every year about this time we receive numerous inquiries about the procedure necessary to grow registered or certified seed. These regulations are made up by the seed growers themselves through their official organization which is known as the Canadian Seed Growers Association. The Seed Growers Association, and the Dominion Department of Agriculture have a working agreement whereby the Production Services of the Department of Agriculture assumes the responsibility of maintaining these standards and regulations. This means that all field inspection and seed inspection etc., is carried out by personnel from the Plant Products Division of the Production Services. The Production Services office responsible for

After having an official germination test must be obtained. Then the grain should be cleaned to a registered standard and sacked. When it is sacked it must be inspected by an official of the Plant Products Division, who will seal and tag the sacks if the grain is of the required standard. It should be remembered that grain is not registered until the official seals and tags are attached to the bags.

According to a survey of American Indians sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Society the mortality rate from cancer among Indians is only about half as great as with whites.

Cancer is the disorganized, unregulated growth of body cells. Although a great deal has been discovered about the nature of this growth, the cause is still unknown.

Warm weather finally made its appearance this week following a month of cool, damp weather with frequent snow and rain showers. Temperatures Monday afternoon reached 80 above, the warmest April 29 since 1926. Tuesday's high was about 75 above and continued warm weather seemed likely on Wednesday.

Surface moisture is good in most parts of the country and fields are in excellent condition for seeding. Winds this week have been very light.

All farmers are now busy in the fields and seeding is progressing at a good rate.

Member of 4-H Club Honored

On Tuesday, April 23, a farewell party was held for Richard Martin, who was a 4-H Club member for a number of years.

He is leaving for St. John's, Quebec, in May, to join the air force. The boys went bowling and afterwards went to the Ross Walker's residence. Roy Lerohl, the president, presented Richard with a lovely wallet. He responded and wished the club future success.

A delicious lunch was served by Mr. and Mrs. Walker. Television was enjoyed, concluding the evening.

carrying on this work in Southern Alberta is located in the Immigration Building at Calgary.

A farmer who may be wondering about the possibilities of growing registered seed should write to the Canadian Seed Growers Association, Box 548, Ottawa for the official rules and regulations. If the prospective grower first familiarizes himself with what is required, considerable money may be saved or earned, as well as eliminating the possibility of disappointment in the future.

To grow registered seed, registered seed must be seeded. First generation, number one registered is the best quality registered seed that can be purchased. The identity of the crop must be definitely established. To do this it is necessary to save the tags which are attached to the bags when the seed is purchased.

Registered seed should only be seeded on clean well prepared summerfallow. Before seeding the grain should be treated with a recognized seed treatment. Even though registered seed is inspected in the field to make sure it is free from disease it should be treated, otherwise the crop may become infected and thus cause it to be turned down when field inspected. Isolation strips around the crop must be left, as laid down in the regulations.

During or before June, application must be made to the Plant Products Division, Immigration Building, Calgary, asking for field inspection. The application must reach Calgary on or before June 30. A small charge is made for field inspection, which varies from a minimum of $2.00 or 10 cents an acre.

Registered seed growers must also make application to join the Canadian Seed Growers Association before July 31, otherwise an additional fee of $5.00 will be charged. The Alberta Branch fee of $2.00 should also be forwarded together with the assessment which varies from $1.00 to $5.00 or more depending on the acreage.

After having an official germination test must be obtained. Then the grain should be cleaned to a registered standard and sacked. When it is sacked it must be inspected by an official of the Plant Products Division, who will seal and tag the sacks if the grain is of the required standard. It should be remembered that grain is not registered until the official seals and tags are attached to the bags.

SERVICE BOARD NOTES

H. S. Burns, Field Supervisor

Agricultural chemicals and a knowledge of their use is a very important aspect of modern farming technique; it is a matter of concern the large number of farms that are still being operated without the benefit of this science. The application of seed dressings for the control of wire worms and soil borne diseases will and is saving the western farmer money in proportion to the amount being used for the purposes. After the crop has advanced to the point where weeds are beginning to be a menace, then the application of 24D in some of its forms will protect the crop and save the valuable moisture for the benefit of the crop that the farmer is trying to produce. Untold thousands of bushels of grain produced in the course of the last ten years are the direct result of the use of these chemicals that were practically unknown to the average farmer ten or fifteen years ago.

The cost of 24D has been reduced to the point where a can be used for about twenty cents an acre on a growing crop. Wire worm dressings may be used singly or in a dual purpose form with protection against soil borne diseases, also at small cost for the derived. We will be glad to supply information in regard to the use of these chemicals to any one interested.

IMPROVED-HIGHWAY SIGNS — New type of highway direction and identification signs will be used henceforth by the Department of Highways, it was announced recently by the Hon. Gordon Taylor, Minister of Highways. Above are shown examples of some of the new markers, as displayed at the Highways Conference held last week. Left, Mrs. W. C. Taylor, of Wainwright, representing the F.W.U.A. at the conference, and C. Bruce of the Rocky Mountain

House Chamber of Commerce, admire details of one of the new signs as pointed out by the Hon. Mr. Taylor. The signs will have white background on which will be black letters or figures. Larger centers off main highways will have descriptive wording under their names, as above. All sign will employ larger letters than previously and almost all will be visible at night, from reflecting paint. Highway marker signs will be as sample shown at right.

Liquor Plebiscite This Year

The session of the Alberta legislature which has just ended dealt with a great many issues, most of them controversial, and there are many opinions about the legislation as finally passed. On one point, however, there seems to be fairly general agreement—the question of increased liquor outlets being submitted to plebiscite was the only fair and just means of dealing with this problem which, perhaps more than any other, is controversial in the extreme. This was evident from the division of opinion in the legislature, where the vote cut across all party lines and revealed almost every shade of opinion on the subject.

Whatever the result of the plebiscite, if the question is clearly stated there will be no doubts and no room for argument thereafter. Certain interests are bitterly opposed to any relaxation of the present restrictions, while others favor a system more in line with that enforced elsewhere. Both sides will, we understand, have ample opportunity to marshal their arguments and organize their supporters, so that the public may be well informed on the issues. In such circumstances, it would seem that the plebiscite would produce a clear-cut expression of the will of the people and silence for many years the controversy which has raged on this most controversial of all topics.

The decision to hold the plebiscite also clarified another matter and we think this is of even greater importance than the question which will appear on the ballot paper. It is a theory of the democratic system that the government is the servant of the people. Of recent years there has been a tendency to assume that the government is the mentor of the people, or even a censor of habits, thinking—and drinking. It is easy to see how such a line of reasoning arises but there seems no good and solemn reason for accepting it. Followed to its logical conclusion, it would result in a benevolent dictatorship, followed gradually by an absolute dictatorship—and even the benevolent kind is contrary to what most of us understand as democratic government. We heartily congratulate the government and the members of the legislature in the action they have taken to ensure that the will of the people shall be made known on this question. It is recognition of the principle that the government is the servant, not the mentor of the people.

Holiday Toil

A form in today's mail has presented an unusual business opportunity. In fact, the letter is entitled, "An Unusual Business Opportunity." On examination, the opportunity does not appear, alias, to be so unusual. From what one has heard around, a good many people are already up to such tricks. The sense of the letter is that a certain firm in a distant city offers employment on the following terms: "This job can be handled in your spare time and need not interfere with your present employment." The letter goes on to point out how a regularly-employed person can profitably use his days off to good advantage by working for the other outfit.

This, of course, is a natural development of the combination of the shorter work week and inflation. The shorter work week (without extra productivity) increases inflation which in turn increases the need for more income. The next logical step in Unusual Business Opportunities will presumably come when people start to get time off from their second job. If a fellow could get a job with no hours of work a week, he might be able to handle two or three extra business opportunities. In fact, his taking money for not working on the first job would have increased inflation so much that he would be forced to work extra hard in his time off.

Reading today's mail over again, one is struck with the Old Testament truth that man's lot is work. The only new thing in this age is that a good many folk are getting their hardest work done in their holidays.

A Common Sense Code For Teen-Agers

Drawn up by the Association of Headmasters (New Jersey)
for the guidance of parents

- 1.—Insist that your boy or girl go to no party to which he or she is not invited, and that no one be allowed at a party in your home unless invited.
- 2.—Every party of teen-agers should be adequately chaperoned. Have no parties at your home when you are not there, and definitely supervising. There should be a definite closing time, known in advance and not extended.
- 3.—Before a boy or girl leaves for a party there should be a clear understanding with the parents how they will travel to the party and return.
- 4.—Impress upon your own young people the full extent of the responsibility in driving someone in a car.
- 5.—We consider it dangerous and contrary to the best interests of young people of high school age to allow beer or other intoxicants at parties. Whatever parents may think about education in the matter of drinking habits, we think it wrong for parents to be offering intoxicants to other people's children.
- 6.—We disapprove of party after party, into the small hours. We disapprove of party after party, into the small hours. Insist that your boy or girl telephone you if they are staying out longer than the time agreed.
- 7.—We feel that our boys ask the parents of the girls for whom they are escorts, what time the girls are expected home, and comply with the wishes of those parents. They should also advise the parents where they are going.

Use Exterior Plywood

Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan builders were warned today about plywood not bonded with waterproof glue.

"Some farm users may get into difficulties because the plywood they are using does not have waterproof glue," said C. S. Cheshire, extension engineer, Alberta Department of Agriculture.

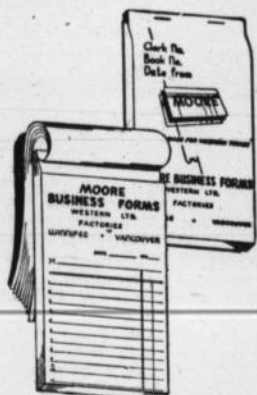

He was referring to "interior type" plywood now making its appearance in cities in Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan. He said this type of plywood may come apart if exposed to weather and moisture.

Cheshire explained that Canadian farmers generally believe all construction plywood is waterproof glued, as Canadian manufacturers of fir plywood only make the waterproof glue type. This type is marked with the Canadian Standards Association recognized mark FMBC EXTERIOR.

"If you are planning to use plywood outdoors, or where it may get wet, be sure to get waterproof glue plywood," said the Alberta government engineer.

In Ceylon almost one-half the cancer deaths are from cancer of the mouth, possibly due to the practice of chewing betel nut. In Canada cancer of the mouth accounts for very few deaths.

Recent studies of Canadian Indians sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Society show that Indians have less skin cancer than do whites. One explanation of this may be that the pigment in the skin is a protection against the sun's rays. Past studies with American negroes show that they, too, have much less skin cancer than do whites.

and 75 million bushels extra Storage.

At the end of the present crop year, Canada will have a record carry-over of wheat—in excess of 600 million bushels. More than 200 million bushels will be on farms. We may take off another big crop.

We must find a way for the farmer to get more wheat into the hands of the Wheat Board. The answer is more storage space—IMMEDIATELY. Terminals take years to build.

I am campaigning to get extra grain storage in steel bins to hold 75 million bushels. These bins of about 3,000-bushel capacity can be erected close to our country elevators but need not be adjacent to them.

Farmers would deliver the wheat to fill bins on their quotas just as they are doing now. The wheat would be weighed and graded in the elevator and the farmer would then auger his load into a bin.

The wheat surplus may only last a short time. When the bins are no longer needed they can be sold to farmers at a reasonable price, recovering much of the capital cost.

Steel bin storage can be erected at a cost of about 25 cents per bushel compared with $1.33 per bushel for terminal elevators, 75 cents per bushel for country elevators and 35 cents for annexes. (It is now hard to find room for annex storage). If these steel bins were kept filled for 2½ years they would repay their original capital cost.

This is an emergency. I think we farmers are justified in asking the Federal Government to bear the cost of storing wheat in these bins as they are now doing on all wheat in commercial elevators in excess of 178 million bushels.

THIS STORAGE PLAN IS CHEAP AND EASILY ADMINISTERED.

Elect me on June 10 and I'll start at once to work for extra storage.

GRANLIN-SMITH

Ferns snapdragons and mums graced the L.D.S. Church in Lethbridge for the wedding on March 29, of Miss Rita MaRee Smith and Elwood LaVerne Granlin. President Grant G. Woolley officiated at the 2:30 p.m. ceremony. Miss Shjela Puzey was organist and Mrs. Elmer Workman of Calgary soloist during the signing of the register. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kaye Smith of Carmangay and the groom, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Granlin of Champion.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, she wore a ballerina-length gown of white chantilly lace over satin styled with wide insets of taffeta at the back, narrowing to a bow in the front bodice. The neckline was wide, outlined by sequins and pearls and hilly-point sleeves. Her illusion net veil bordered with chantilly lace was caught to her coronet head-dress of silk toole and pearls. Her cascade bouquet was white carnations surrounded by clusters of deep red rosebuds and ivy.

The bridesmaid were Carol Smith, Elaine Granlin and Kathy Smith. They wore identical gowns of white nylon crepe ballerina length full skirts and fitted bodice with draped neckline. They wore red feathered cocktail head-dresses and matching red heels. They all carried red and white carnations on a hoop.

Sloane Smith and Ronald Jordan were best men, and Lshering the guests were Bruce Smith, Eldon Smith and George Shultz.

For her daughter's wedding the bride's mother, Mrs. Faye Smith chose a gold sheath with full back panels and navy accessories, her corsage was of white carnations and lilies of the valley. The groom's mother, Mrs. E. Granlin, chose a teal blue afternoon sheath frock with navy accessories. Her corsage was white carnations and lilies of the valley.

The bride's table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake surrounded by pink toole and white baby mums. The guest book was in charge of Miss Wilma Furly. Mrs. O. H. Smith and Mrs. W. Griffin were in charge of the gifts.

Open house was held at the home of the bride's parents in Carmangay, for 125 invited guests from seven to ten thirty of the same evening. This was followed by a wedding dance at the Carmangay Community Hall.

For their honeymoon to Salt Lake City the new Mrs. Granlin chose a pink wool suit topped with a white nylon coat and all white accessories. Her corsage was red sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Granlin will make their future home on the Granlin farm east of Champion, where the groom will farm with his father.

Out-of-town guests were from Calgary, Utah, Cardston, Barnwell, Medicine Hat, Edmonton and Creston, B.C.,

SMALL PUSH

"The town was ready to go ahead," the man said. "It had been standing still, but it had everything it really needed to go ahead. Then this new fellow came along and he gave it a little push.

Whoosh! Things started happening and they've been happening ever since. The place is bursting out at the seams."

"What did he do?" I asked.

"What kind of a push?"

"Oh—it didn't take much. You know how it is when your car is stuck in the snow. Doesn't take much of a push—just one person can do it. That's how it was with this town. This fellow just organized a meeting or two... and the merchants got together and put on Saturday night sales, and then he suggested a corner playground for our own youngsters and visiting families—and things like that. People that used to go to other towns, started coming here... just that little difference. It doesn't take much."

Come to think of it, it really doesn't take much to make the all-important difference. A pipe manufacturer once said that by adding a little silver band to his pipes, he won smokers over from the plain ones, and got a much higher price. It was just that bit of difference that was needed to turn the trick.

Horse races are often won by a nose—a mere fraction of a fraction of an inch. Just a spark of energy at the right moment and an important race is won. Maybe it works the same with towns and horse races and men—the little extra, the jot or little added, can make such a big difference.

I think it was the famous surgeon, Sir William Osler, who said he never despaired of a patient or student who was the smallest bit better today than yesterday. Dramatic change wasn't needed for progress—just that little gain was all he looked for.

There's something inspiring about the notion of improving just a slight fraction today over yesterday. The task is not too great to frighten anyone. Surely, it should be possible to do just a little bit more today than was done yesterday!

And when that begins to happen, progress seems to have a way of accumulating at compound interest. One gain contributes to another. One man's effort inspires a neighbor. First thing you know, everything's humming.

Wonderful what can result from one small push to start things rolling!

VulcanHow An Advertised*Article Sold 15 to 1*Over An "Unknown"

Lit Brothers, Philadelphia department store, recently conducted a test to determine the selling power of advertising.

Simmons mattresses, a branded, advertised product, sold 15 to 1 over identical mattresses bearing a fictitious brand label which was unknown to the public.

The store then lowered the price $5 on the mattress with the fictitious label. Simmons mattresses still outsold the "unknown" mattress by 8 to 1.

Later a $10 differential was imposed. Simmons mattresses still outsold the "unknown" by 14 to 13.

Mr. Merchant . . AskYourself This Question

"Can I afford to operate a business which is 'unknown' and which sells 'unknown' products?"

Maybe your products are just as good; maybe your store is just as good—or even better—than others. But the Philadelphia department store found that customers don't spend their time in finding out about your store and your products.

The product which tells them is the one that sells them. And the store whose name is a household word, made so by constant, consistent and honest advertising, is the one in "preferred position" by a score of 15 to 1.

Yes, good and honest advertising doesn't cost. IT PAYS!

Men Who Make Alberta

THE TRUCK DRIVER

Many fields of endeavour have been more glamorized, none are any more important than that of the men who provide the transportation necessary to our prosperity. This is true of any section of the civilized world, but nowhere is the truth more apparent than in Alberta.

Distances are great in this sprawling land, the population is spread over a huge area, and the economy of each area is dependent on all others. One of the most important links between the various centres of population and the widely scattered farms are the highways and the men who make the long hauls in the big trucks. With our dependence on national and international trade, the trucker is called upon to bear a large portion of the transportation load leaving and entering Alberta as well.

Yet all too frequently, the trucker comes in for unjustified abuse... his driving ability behind the wheel of a huge highway transport is sometimes criticized by people who show no particular talent when driving small passenger cars.

The truth is that collectively, the truckers' record for both safety and courtesy is second to none on our highways today. He drives a vehicle that is harder to handle than anything on the road, day and night, in all types of weather. His employers and customers stand for no incompetence. Their capital and their goods are in his hands. He just has to be good, and his record proves that he is.

With the trucker, driving is a profession, not a pastime or a means of personal transportation... and like any professional he knows his job... the business of keeping the wheels of Alberta industry turning and its population supplied with its needs.
